

HAWAI'I ISLAND MARKET UPDATE

OCTOBER 2024

The Big Island real estate market appears to be in a 'wait-and-see' mode as it relates to the November election. October's sales activity showed slight signs of increase, while median prices softened alongside longer days on market. To succeed in this market, sellers must be mindful of their pricing strategy, while buyers can afford to be more aggressive, especially with properties that have been on the market longer. Cash buyers are still present, though they are few and far between. Finally, don't get caught sleeping on Big Island real estate—as snowbirds start their migration back and with the possibility of improved economic conditions, this stalemate could loosen up quickly.
